HOMEWORK WEEK (29 April to 3 May 2013, 1st.)

SPEAKING PARTNER ACTIVITY 3\textsuperscript{rd}. Car Accident

Questions:

What are some of the major factors that lead to car accidents and what can be done to deal with these causes? What possible injuries can occur in such accidents? Who would you contact if you had to file a whiplash accident claim or other request for medical assistance?

2. VOCABULARY: REMEMBER CREATE A SENTENCE WITH THESE NEW VOCABULARY

- blab (verb): talk too much about unimportant things, some of which might be private matters
  - She blabbed to her friends all about the accident and how it was all my fault. How embarrassing.

- jump to conclusions (idiom): form an opinion without all the facts and evidence
  - Hey, don't jump to conclusions. The accident might not have been her fault.

- pull into (phrasal verb): move into a spot like a parking space or driveway
  - When you arrive, just pull your car into the garage.

- ruin (verb): spoil or destroy something completely

- be in a jam (idiom): be in a difficult situation
  - I'm in a real jam because I have a date tonight, but my car broke down this afternoon? What am I going to do?

- tough (adjective): difficult or unfortunate
  - Not having a car right now must be really tough. How are you going to get to work without one?

- awesome (adjective): very good, impressive

- count on (phrasal verb): depend on

- wreck (verb): completely destroy or ruin
  - My father wrecked the family car last night, but fortunately, he wasn't hurt

Man: Honey. Do you know what time Katie will be home?
Woman: Uh, she should be here any minute. She took the car to pick up something from the store.

Man: Okay, I was just a little worried that . . . Man, what was that? Oh, no. The car! She drove over the line and hit a tree in the front yard. Ah, the car!
Woman: Well, just don't stand there blabbing all day. Let's go out and see if Katie's okay.
Man: Ah, my car.
Woman: Honey, are you okay?

Daughter: Oh, mom. I'm so sorry. I can't believe this is happening.
Man: Oh, my car!
Woman: Forget your car!
Man: Driving with the cell phone. I know.

Daughter: It wasn't that at all. Don't jump to conclusions.
Man: Oh, yeah.
Daughter: Dad . . . uh, mom. It's not like that at all. I mean, as I was pulling into the [4] , something rolled from under the seat and got stuck under the brake pedal . . . the gas pedal . . . I, I don't know, and I couldn't stop the car. And then I accidentally hit the gas when I wanted to brake, and I hit the mailbox.

Woman: Uh, I think I know what the problem was. Honey, did you put those golf balls away like I told you? The ones YOU put under the driver's seat . . . the ones I told you would get in the way.

Man: Man, I thought I got those.

Daughter: Plus, Mom, the windshield wipers on the car didn't work, so I couldn't see very well in the rain.

Woman: Didn't you get those fixed?

Man: Uh, I've been meaning to get those [5].

Daughter: And mom. I was going to use the car this weekend to go [6] with my friends, but now my plans are ruined. My friends are going to hate me. What am I going to do?

Woman: Hon, yeah, what IS your daughter going to do? It appears that it's mainly your [7] for the accident and that she's in such a jam.

Daughter: Mom, we've been planning this weekend for months. I need a car.

Woman: Hon.

Woman: I think what your dad is trying to say is that you can take his new Jeep.

Daughter: Yeah, [9].

Man: What?

Daughter: Yes!

Man: Wait, not my new Jeep. I don't even have 500 miles on it.

Daughter: Four-wheeling through the mud, over big rocks and in deep ruts in the road . . . if there IS a road.

Man: Ah.

Woman: You love your daughter, don't you?

Man: Ask me after she returns from the trip.

Daughter: Ah, Dad. I'm going to call my friends to let them know of the good news. Thanks, Dad, I knew I could count on you.

Man: Yeah, but make sure wrecking the car doesn't become a [10] activity.

Daughter: Dad!
